INVESTIGATIVE/ENTERPRISE: POWER & GOVERNANCE

Months before she quit, Nora Vargas quietly set up her own consulting firm

by Greg Moran February 12, 2025

Vargas formed her consulting business five months before she announced she would quit, and while she was campaigning and fundraising for another term, the records show.

On July 29, Vargas registered “Nora Vargas LLC” with the Secretary of State’s office. Four months later, after she had won re-election to the board, she filed more paperwork stating the purpose of the business would be “Consulting.”

Last week Vargas filed her required final financial disclosure statement as a supervisor, covering the period from January 2024 through Jan. 6, 2025. She listed the new LLC, and checked a box indicating she had received between $1,001 and $10,000 gross income during that time.

That would indicate Vargas was earning money through her LLC as a consultant during the time she was also the chairwoman of the board. The documents do not say what type of consulting she was doing, or where, or who her clients were.
